Each and every one of the legal fraternity, who were in attendance at the Circuit Court for Iosco county, speak in the highest terms of Hon. J. B. Tuttle as Circuit Judge. The Iosco Gazette speaks as follows:

Judge Tuttle has just closed his first term of Court here, and we speak but the general sentiment of all when we say that he has won the confidence and esteem of our people by his dignified yet courteous bearing, his prompt and intelligent rulings, and his candid and impartial treatment of every case brought before him.

The Tennessee Jubilee Singers played to a fair house in this city, last Saturday evening, notwithstanding the stormy weather, and on Monday evening the hall was pretty well filled. The troupe gave good satisfaction. An admirable feature of the entertainments was the piano playing of Mlle Inez Fernandez. Mlle Inez imitated the life and drum, tuning of the violin, music box, and banjo on the piano, in a manner that brought down the house. A good representation of thunder was given on the piano. Mlle Inez was frequently applauded and was several times encoored. The entertainment closed with an old fashioned camp meeting scene that took the house by storm.

Marine Disasters.

The schooner Canton went ashore on Lake Erie Tuesday night.

The schooner Portland went ashore at False Presque Isle, and the tug Winslow went to her relief.

The barge C. P. Williams went ashore a few miles below Point au Pelee, and the crew consisting of Capt. Abernethy, of Buffalo, mate, female cook, and three sailors, two of whom were named Sidney Walker and Mike Hannon, of Bay City, were drowned.

The schooner Seaman went ashore on Grosse Isle, Monday week, and was relieved.

On Wednesday the schooner Ada ran into Lakeport dock, and became wedged between the spiles, where the sea broke her up. Crew rescued.

The scow D. G. Williams, lumber laden, went ashore at St. Joseph, Wednesday, and was in bad condition.

A dispatch from Cheboygan, Michigan, October 8th, says the tug M. F. Sutton, with a barge in tow, left here last night for Latour. When near Spectacle Reef light, the sea being very high, she ran on the reef. All hands got on the pier, and Thursday morning the tug parted lines, and the tug and barge went adrift down Lake Huron.

The propeller St. Joseph went into Clark's dry dock with what was supposed to be a loose wheel, but when the dock was pumped out, in her wheel was found to be entangled a large fish net, which was probably caught near Cedar Point.

On Thursday the schooners Eliza White and Madra went ashore at Long Point. The captain and cook of the White are drowned.

Thursday the schooner C. G. Mixer, coal laden for Chicago, was leaking badly at Tawas, and was towed to the beach by the steamer Dove, to keep her from going down.

On Tuesday night last week the schooner Lake Forest, laden with coal and Chicago bound, struck the reef on North Point and sprung a bad leak. She came into this port and repaired damages as much as possible. She had lost fore and main topsails, square sail and standing jib. One of her crew was killed and another badly injured. The Lake Forest left this port at 10 o'clock, Sunday, leaking badly. The captain shipped several new men from this port.

Thursday night the schooner J. B. Ketchum ran on to Thunder Bay Island reef and caused a bad leak. She lost considerable of her rigging. She also ran into this port. On Saturday the Ketchum broke her lines and drifted to the north side of the river where she got aground.

The schooners Benson and Albatross, loaded with square timber, went ashore at Nine Mile Point, on Monday week. One of these vessels is now in three feet of water and the other in five. Mr. Pack, the owner of the timber, and others went to the point on Monday for the purpose of ascertaining what could be done to get them off.—They are now being unloaded.

It is reported that the tug Prindiville went ashore and has gone to pieces off Presque Isle.

Sailors report that the terrible storms of last week were the most gigantic of any that have occurred on the lakes for the last twenty-five years, and there were very few, if any, vessels out in the storm which did not receive some injury; and it is a wonder that many more accidents and disasters are not reported. It will probably never be known how much damage has actually been done, or the number of vessels which suffered from the gale.

It is reported that the shores on the whole chain of lakes are strewn with vessels aground, pieces of masts, portions of sails and rigging, scattering fractions of cargoes washed overboard, and occasionally the body of some unfortunate individual who was unceremoniously precipitated into eternity through a watery grave.

Saunderings in the County.

As it is not yet noon, and as we have an hour or two to spare, we will jaunt up the main road for a mile or so. We have cleared land on both sides of us. On our left is a school house. There is some extensive ditching on the right, and a little further up is a narrow stretch of what used to be a wet bog. This bog, however, is well ditched, and we can see by looking at the ditch, that the black muck is at least four or five feet deep. A ditch has been dug through the center of the bog and extends at right angles with the road, and appears as if it would effectively drain it. The next clearing is that of Edward Brown, and presents a fine appearance. Mr. Brown's barn like all other barns we have seen, is full of farm produce. In fact well filled barns is a common thing with the "Burnt Land" farmers, and sometimes the barn is filled, threshed out, and then filled again.

A little beyond Mr. Brown's residence, we turn to the right, and following the road about half a mile, we come to the farm of Mr. LeRoy. The country here has the same rich appearance so common to the "Burnt Lands." There are fields of second growth clover, and of wheat stubble; there are barns well filled, and in the road the clover is knee deep, affording choice picking to our ponies, a chance they make good use of during our short stay.

But what is that which is shocked up in the field in front of us? It has a familiar appearance. Surely we have seen something like it, but it is so long ago that it seems like a dream. Corn, yes it must be corn! Is it, farmer? Yes, sir, that's corn. You're sure? Sure, why of course I am, and there is not a field of corn raised anywhere that will beat it, although there are several farmers in the settlement who have patches equally as good. Why, we thought corn couldn't be raised in this county? Too cold. Too far north. Can't help it. Have grown this corn here, and I'd like to see a better crop than this. Just look at those ears. Ain't they plump and well filled? Why, sir, we can grow as good corn in Alpena county, as can be grown in any place in the United States, and the same can be said of other grains. Of course we don't try to raise the horse-tooth or any other of the coarse southern varieties of corn. This corn is far superior in quality to any horse-tooth corn for family purposes.—Well, well, another old notion exploded, and what would the dismal croakers say if they saw this field. They would have to change their tune a good deal.

We have, however, travelled far enough for one day, and it will be dinner time by the time we get to Londen's, so we must retrace our steps, sorry that we are unable to visit the farms that are further up the road, but then we are satisfied with what we have seen. We have satisfied our longing to see a farming country which a long residence on the shore among the mills and sawdust has created. We are better satisfied than ever with Alpena and her prospects. No Kansas or Texas for us. This county is good enough for anybody, and it only needs settling and cultivating to make it one of the most flourishing counties in the State. Good soil, plenty of it, close to one of the best harbors on the chain of lakes, and consequently close to a market that is sure to be established when there are settlers enough to raise sufficient produce to attract buyers; what more can be desired.

Well, we must quit moralizing and retrace our steps, for there are good twenty or twenty-five miles of road laying before us, so we pass rapidly until we come to the school house. Our course is straight down the main road for about three miles. The land is mostly all cleared and under cultivation. Field after field is passed in rapid succession. Houses, barns, gardens, etc., greet the eye continually.—There on our right is the prosperous looking farm of Mr. Twaits, further on is Mr. Merrill's, where is situated the Long Rapids post-office, and then there are a number of places the ownership of which is unknown to us. On the right we can discern a number of farm houses belonging to Mr. Cavanagh, Mr. Todd, and Mr. Soper, and others whose names we did not learn. However some day we expect to have the pleasure of viewing the farms more particularly, and then we shall be able to give our readers a better account of what is going on. Thunder Bay river is but a short distance, on the right.

But here we are at Londen's, and we will stay long enough to refresh ourselves and ponies. The place has a comfortable look about it that is very cheering to a wearied and hungry traveller, especially as meals can be obtained at all hours. It has a genuine country look about it that reminds us vividly of scenes of early days. The view in front is a very pleasant one, and there is that quietness about it so enticing to a denizen of the city. It is no wonder that old associations rush to the mind picturing past incidents and events. But as Elam Panenka says: "There goes that glorious and immortal sound I love so well—the chuck hammer," and after we have partaken of a good, substantial meal, we are once more ready for our homeward journey.

Mineral Poisons.

When Macbeth told the Doctor to "throw the physic to the dogs," and added that he would take none of it, he was doubtless addressing one of those enemies who prescribe Mercury, Calomel, Bismuth, Quinine and Arsenic for every disease they have occasion to treat in the course of their practice. Mineral poison when once taken into the system is entangling in its effects, and can never be eradicated, but is a source of perpetual torment, causing pains and aches to afflict the sufferer every time there is a change of the weather. The only safety lies in purely vegetable remedies, such as Dr. Radcliffe's Seven Seas or Golden Wonder, which is a sovereign remedy in a great variety of the most common and malignant diseases. October.
